Science connecting land and people

Our thriving Postgraduate school is testament to our commitment to providing the highest standard of training opportunities to UK and international students. Undertaking postgraduate studies at the James Hutton Institute provides students with valuable experience of working in a professional environment.

All our PhD opportunities are advertised on the FindAPhD website. Each PhD proposal has the supervisors and funding already in place. The funding is provided through a large variety of sources including: Agriculture and Horticulture

Development Board (AHDB), Scottish National Heritage (SNH), Economics and Social Research Council (ERSC) and Joint schemes with the Institute and a specific university.
